Evaluation is the most effective tool to continue current funding and attract new funders. Everyone can benefit from learning to establish an evaluation plan BEFORE your project begins. Success is a powerful motivator.

This is a course designed for community organizations and individuals who want to learn about evaluation basics. Course topic areas include the 5 functions of evaluation, creating an evaluation plan, the spectrum of evidence needed, developing a logic model, and pulling it all together.

Learning Objectives:

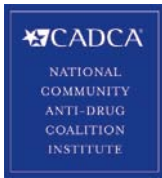

- Participants will be able to clearly describe how their organization/initiative will make a difference.
- Participants will understand and be able to list the five functions of evaluation.
- Participants understand the steps required to create an evaluation plan for their work.
- Participants will understand the range of evidence that can be used in evaluation.
- Participants will be able to diagram their program/initiative's theory of change.
